

FOUR ARRESTS CLEAR INDICTMENT MYSTERY

COPPER STRIKERS HELD ON CHARGE OF CARRYING CON-CEALED WEAPONS.

MOYER NOT INCLUDED

President of Western Federation Outside of Jurisdiction and No Action Will Be Taken on His Alleged Deportation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Houghton, Mich., Jan. 16.—The mystery of the secret indictment returned yesterday by the special grand jury which has been investigating disorders growing out of the copper miners' strike, was cleared up today with the arrest of four strikers charged with carrying concealed weapons.

One More Indictment.
Although the jury continued its deliberations this morning only one other true bill had been found and those who had expected a return on the deportation of Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, admitted today that there was nothing on which to base a tradition as to probable action.

Only one secret indictment remained sealed according to information of the county clerk's office.
The four men taken into custody on concealed weapon charges are accused of having taken an undue part in the disorders at South Range, Mich.
They are: Olli Tikkanen, Eli and Lino Luukkonen and John Lampki.
These men were arrested at the time of the "battle of the south range" and it is alleged that they were armed with particularly formidable revolvers and sawed-off shotguns.
Fourteen of the men taken into custodian on the conspiracy charge were released before midnight on bail of $1,000 each.

Not to Be Arrested Moyer.
So far as could be learned there is no intention of attempting to obtain the arrest and requisition of Charles H. Moyer, C. E. Mahoney and other national officers of the union who are beyond the jurisdiction of the court on the misdemeanor charge of conspiracy. It is probable that the warrants for these men will be held and served only in case they return to Houghton county.

PROF. TAFT CLAIMS AUTO TAX TOO HIGH

Ex-President Makes Protest When New Haven Assessors Value His Car at $4,500.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New Haven, Conn., Jan. 16.—Prof.
William Howard Taft of Yale is dissatisfied with the tax levied upon his automobile by the city. Recently he received a tax bill showing that the assessors had rated his machine as worth $4,500, to this ten per cent had been added upon his failure to appear within the required time and to wear to his tax list. This brought the total on which the 19 mill tax is computed up to $5,000.
In a letter to the assessors Mr. Taft today informed them that he purchased the car second hand, paying only $2,000 for it and failed to understand how the car could be valued at $4,500. Prof. Taft owns real estate in New Haven, he did not have time to when the assessors were making up the list last spring and is not taxable this year.

NEW HAMPSHIRE HAS HEALTH RALLY DAY

Public Meetings Held in Every City tation Reforms.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Concord, N. H., Jan. 16.—Meetings to consider public health problems were held in every city of the state today in accordance with a recent proclamation of Gov. Feltner naming this as "health day."
The governor expressed the belief that the setting aside of a day for this purpose would serve to "focus thought and stimulate activity along the lines of the prevention and restriction of disease and to concentrate action that will result in greater efficiency of purpose."

PENNSYLVANIA POLITICIAN DIES OF PNEUMONIA TODAY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Philadelphia, Jan. 16.—John F. Fisher of Indiana, Pennsylvania, a former state senator and well known in politics throughout Pennsylvania, died today from pneumonia. He was 48 years old. Mr. Fisher was chairman of the capital investigation committee which resulted in the imprisonment of a number of state officials in connection with alleged frauds committed in the furnishing of the state building.

NO MORE DANGER IS EXPECTED FROM THE SAKURA VOLCANO

Japanese Government Experts Report Danger is All Practically Over at Present.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Kagoshima, Japan, Jan. 16.—The volcano of Sakurajima was still smoking today. Dr. Fusaichi Omori, professor of geology at the Tokyo imperial university, declared that this morning to begin an elaborate official investigation.
The people of Kagoshima, many of whom have been turned to the mined city, only to find their houses destroyed, waited with wonderful faith for Prof. Omori to give his decision as to the possibility of further catastrophes. He declared this afternoon there was no further danger.
Many families were separated during the panic which followed the eruption and the highways are crowded with sad-looking people searching for relatives. The authorities are doing their utmost to re-establish order.
A number of newspaper correspondents today visited the island of Sa-kurajima, on which the volcano is situated. They found the surface of the earth too hot to walk on, while everywhere the ground was full of dangerous holes. Ashes lay drifted in thick heaps and showers of small stones were still falling.

TO CHARGE TITANIC WAS NOT SEAWORTHY

Will Be an Important Claim in Damage Suit Against White Star Line.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Jan. 16.—The plea that the Titanic was unseaworthy when she left England in April, 1912, on her disastrous voyage to New York United States, which cost the lives of over 1,500 people, is to be advanced in a suit for damages brought against the White Star line by Thomas Whiteley, one of the surviving stewards.
The plaintiff sustained a fracture of the right leg in the wreck. Whiteley's counsel, Allen Clement Edwards, lawyer member of parliament, will also argue on behalf of his client that there was negligence in the steering of the ill-fated vessel.
The hearing has been provisionally fixed for March 15.
This will be the first time that suggestion in regard to the seaworthi-ness of the Titanic has been raised in the court. Whiteley, in an interview with the press, has stated that New York hospital after the wreck declared that the officers of the Titanic had disregarded the warnings of the lookout that icebergs were in the vicinity.

MIRACLE OF PRAYER EFFECTS HER CURE

Such is Claim of Richland Center Woman Who Suddenly Walks After Years of Invalidism.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Richland Center, Wis., Jan. 16.—"I heard a voice as distinct as though human whispering to me, 'will you walk home leaning on no arm but mine?' 'I will,' I shouted and I leaped to my feet and walked for the first time in twenty-six years."
This is the description of Mrs. H.
S. Moran herself of a cure she says was effected upon her during a cottage prayer meeting here.
"I look upon this event as unex-pectable except as a miracle, an under intervention of God, raising up this crippled woman of good faith," said the Rev. D. G. Jones, pastor of the Reformed Methodist church.
Mrs. Moran has been paralyzed for twenty-six years. She has suffered untold pain, but through it all had maintained an abiding faith in the goodness and power of the Almighty to restore her.

CONTINUE DRAINAGE OF HORICON MARSH

Such is Order of Railroad Commission After Probing Objections of Nixons.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Jan. 16.—The Horicon marsh hunting grounds may become tilable land if predictions made in an order of the railroad commission today become true.
Rock river in the vicinity of Horicon is being drained and certain residents have brought an action before the commission to restrain the work upon the ground that it would destroy the hunting grounds, and cause the water to become stagnant.
The commission, after a full investigation, dismissed the action. It found that the project of the stream would improve the conditions.

OFFER GOOD TERMS FOR PRUSSIAN LOAN

Tight Money Market Forces Government to Make Better Proposition.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berlin, Jan. 16.—A loan of one hundred million dollars to be floated by Prussia on Jan. 9 is to take a new form—4 per cent treasury warrants.
In view of the lack of success of government issues made during 1913 it is now offered on better terms, being issued at 97 and redeemable at par in from on to sixteen years. The loan issued in June last year was at 97.90 and that of March at 98, and these were largely unsubscribed.
The German empire has decided to refrain from borrowing at the present in view of the unfavorable money conditions.

LA FOLLETTE ON JOB TO WARN PRESIDENT

Reported Settlement of New Haven Merger Case Out of Court Now Arouses Wisconsin
Senator.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—A note of warning to President Wilson is sounded in an editorial today by Senator La Follette in his weekly over the proposed settlement of the New Haven railroad merger.
"How is the present administration going to dispose of this ill-favored case that has been bequeathed by President to President?" asks Senator La Follette. "Will it end with Wilson, or will it, glossed over, be handed down to his successor? Let it be remembered in this connection that nothing is ever settled until it is settled right."

Settlement Hinted.
Senator La Follette calls attention to the fact that the proposed settlement of the New Haven railroad and Presidential Merger Case out of Court now arouses Wisconsin Senator.
"Getting together to settle, amicably and outside of the court room, the case of the Morgan property con-trust monopoly vs. the Sherman Anti-Trust law," he points out that the case was brought six years ago by Senator Roosevelt. He says that the monopoly is in control not only of the steam and trolley lines between New England and New York, but also the steamship lines.
Before the petition was signed and filed, however, Morgan's representative, President Mellen of the New Haven, who brought about the whole combination, called upon President Roosevelt and persuaded him to have the case omitted from the bill of complaint reference to the acquisition of the steamship lines," charges the senator.
"Roosevelt's compliance with this request greatly weakened the case; this obliging concession made by Roosevelt to Morgan's man Mellen took away the strongest prop sustaining the government's side."

Legacy to Wilson.
The case was handed down to the Taft administration. That administration made short shift of it.
Within three months Attorney General Wickersham dismissed the government action and the case of complaint was merely of the monster transportation monopoly. So that there came to the Wilson administration an iniquitous legacy in the hope of a pampered, law breaking monopoly still pursuing the crooked tenor of its way by executive sanction.
Senator La Follette discusses Louis D. Brandeis' expose of "financial debauchery and crime of the Taft administration" and says that the part of the New Haven monopoly and suggests that President Wilson's administration should now meet the issue.

DAIRMEN PROTEST EXCESSIVE TAXES

Industries of State Made to Carry Too Heavy Burden Because Progressive Tax Plan Failed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Jan. 16.—Nearly one fifty of the dairy products of the state must go to the expenses of maintaining the government at the present according to the statement, made by O.
A. LaBuddé, former assemblyman from Elkhart Lake. LaBuddé is an enthusiastic democrat.
"It looks to me as though the time has come when the people to protest against excessive taxation," said La-Buddé. "The industries of the state are being made to carry too heavy a burden. After all the talk of the income tax cutting down the real estate assessment it has been found that this year's real estate taxes are heavier than before and throughout my travels in the state I have found taxpayers highly dissatisfied. An example of the high taxes may be found in the dairy industry.
The dairy products of Wisconsin amount to $80,000,000 a year. If, as stated, it costs $18,000,000 to maintain the government, the cost of the one fifty of the dairy product of the state has to go for state expenses."

attached to Capt. Francis Luch, or the officers of the Uranium liner Volturno in connection with the fire

MEXICAN REFUGEES OFF ON LONG HIKE

Guarded by American Troops They Are Proceeding to Fort Bliss, Near El Paso.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Presidio, Tex., Jan. 16.—All the 3,300 Mexican federal soldiers and 1,000 women refugees who sought safety in the United States after the capture of Ojinaga have left Presidio today for the march to Marfa, from which point they are to be transported by railroad to Fort Bliss, near El Paso.
Never had there been seen on a border so picturesque a migration as when the scattered Mexican army was set in motion on the four days' march to Marfa. Small detachments had been drifting along the border for several days, but it was not until daylight today that the main body started.

Much Scattered.
The ragged army was scattered for 67 miles along the mountain road to Marfa, closely guarded by United States cavalry men. Gen. Salvador Merano, until recently Huerta's military chief in northern Mexico, rode in an auto with Gen. Francisco Can-tro. Other federal generals rode on horses. The common soldiers and the women refugees, many of them carrying their children in their arms, made the march afoot.

TO PERFECT PLANS TUBERCULOSIS CAMP

State Board of Control Will Consider Plans for Camp at Tomahawk Lake.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—Preliminary steps for the starting of the state tuberculosis camp at Tomahawk Lake will probably be taken at a meeting of the state board of control next week. The Holmes bill passed at the last session of the legislature called for an annual appropriation of $10,000 to be used for the purpose of establishing a tuberculosis camp. The bill also provided that the state board of control should have the right to select the site and to acquire the land. The board is now considering the plan to build a camp at Tomahawk Lake, near Madison. The plan is to build a camp of about 100 acres, with a building for the patients, a building for the nurses, and a building for the administration. The plan is to build a camp

BIG LINER REPORTS RESCUE OF SEAMEN

Some Mystery Surrounds Wireless Message From Lusitania Regards Rescue of Eight Sailors.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Jan. 16.—The commander of the Cunard liner Lusitania, which sailed from here on Wednesday for Liverpool, sent a wireless message to the liner today saying that at 6:30 o'clock this morning in latitude 43:30 longitude 50:30 the Lusitania had rescued the crew of eight men from the schooner Mayflower.
The schooner was abandoned and set on fire.
Marine records show that the British schooner Mayflower left Perth Amboy, New Jersey, on December 30 for St. Johns, N. F., and was last seen at Bay, Me., on January 10. She could not possibly have been in the position indicated by the Lusitania today. No other ship of the schooner type is recorded.

TY COBB IS OFFERED FIVE YEAR CONTRACT BY FEDERALS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Jan. 16.—Ty Cobb was offered a five year contract at $15,000 a year in a telegram sent to him at St. Louis, Mo., by the Federal League.
Cobb had learned Cobb had not yet signed with Detroit for 1914.
Gillmore's telegram offers to pay Cobb his past year's salary in advance and to put the remaining sixty thousand in escrow.

A New Teacher —ADVERTISING

Advertising is becoming the national schoolmaster, as you can see by the columns of this and other leading newspapers.
Telephone companies who seek to improve their service advertise ways and means for using the phone to best advantage.
Some of them impress on the public the advantages of courtesy—using newspaper space actually to teach good manners.
AND THEY SAY IT PAYS!

Gas companies every now and then run interesting campaigns explaining new uses for gas—uses which save time, labor, and money!

Railroads and other great interests frequently appeal directly to the public on some great question, using the advertising columns of the newspapers.

All of this goes to make advertising a more interesting and important factor to our daily lives.

Not to read the announcements in the newspapers is to be out of date.

CREST OF FLOOD IS PAST DANGER LINE

West Virginia Danger Now Thought Past—Rivers Rose Gradually
But Not Dangerously.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Cumberland, Md., Jan. 16.—Reassured that the worst of the flood which swept down the Stoney Creek and upper Potomac valleys yesterday as the result of the breaking of the great dam of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company at Dobbin, West Virginia, is over, the hundreds of refugees who fled to the hills upon the warning began to return to their homes early today.
The valley is getting itself together and counting the damage from the flood. No lives were lost so far as has been ascertained. There were, however, many reports of persons being rescued. It is believed that the prompt action of the Pulp and Paper Company's employees in sending out warning of impending danger throughout the valley has saved many lives in the danger zone to escape.

No Real Figures.
It probably will be several days before anything like an accurate estimate of the damage to property can be obtained, but officials here fix it at about $200,000. With the telephone and telegraph communication re-established definite estimates of the loss soon may be reported. The greatest damage was to railroad property.
The telephone operator at Schell is being lauded today as a hero. He stuck to his post until he heard the noise of the onrushing waters, warning a warning in all directions. It was feared he had been lost, but he turned up safe at Cumberland later in the day.

Offer Aid.
Washington, Jan. 16.—The Red Cross today telegraphed Gov. Hatfield of West Virginia asking whether its services were needed in assisting the sufferers from the flood which swept the Stoney Creek and Potomac valleys by the breaking of the dam of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

Damage was done by the rising waters at Piedmont, W. V., the largest place in the line of the flood and the people there who had fled to higher ground, returned to their homes.
The expected water had traffic will be resumed on the Western Maryland railroad tomorrow. The Potomac and Cumberland did not rise more than four feet.

DEMOCRATS WAGE WAR ON STATE TAX

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Jan. 16.—That the high taxes will be the predominant issue in the coming campaign is believed to be assured by the announcement by Henry E. Roethe of Fennimore, Wis., of his candidacy for the governorship.
He leaves no doubt in the minds of progressive Democrats that the state tax will be the issue of the campaign.
The announcement of Roethe fairly bristled with protest over present taxation. In it he declares that the people of Wisconsin are slowly being taxed to death and that there is a "stern necessity of doing something to stop the rapid and enormous increase in taxes." Among the things that the government at the present state too much are the university and the "good roads campaign."

Roethe proposes to stem the rising tax tide by the following methods: By vetoing every bill that creates a new tax or increases an existing tax; every bill carrying an appropriation not absolutely needed; every "fool" bill that reaches the executive chamber; every bill making larger appropriations than the state treasury bill calling for larger appropriations for roads and bridges; and every bill that tends to lessen "home rule" for cities and counties and centralize the power of government in the state capital.

SUBMARINE SANK BUT FAILED TO COME UP

Sixteen Men at Bottom of Plymouth Harbor in Wrecked Vessel.

Plymouth, Eng., Jan. 16.—The failure of the British submarine "A-7" with sixteen men on board to rise to the surface after she had dived to the bottom of Plymouth Sound during maneuvers caused intense anxiety here today.
After the maneuvers were over two sister submarines noticed that their sister vessel did not come up and immediately signaled for assistance to Plymouth and Devonport.
Salvage vessels hurried to the scene. Bubbles were seen rising to the surface in Cawsand Bay and cannisters were thrown out to bring the wrecked vessel to the surface, although the bubbles indicated that her hull had been penetrated and caused despair of the saving of the crew.
A short time afterward a parent vessel Onyx got into communication with the sailors, all of whom were alive. At 6 the crew had not yet been rescued. As the submarine had gone down the time before now it had been below water for over six hours.
The last signal from the entombed men was heard at a quarter past five.
The vessel lies on the bottom at about 100 feet deep. Admiralty engineers fear that the crew consists of Lieutenant Albert M. Wilman, another officer and fourteen men, making a total of sixteen.

FIVE THOUSAND MEN WILLING TO BECOME SOUTH SEA BENEDICTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
San Francisco, Jan. 16.—Major Frank Pooley, British army officer, retired, is the busiest man in San Francisco. One hundred dusky belles of Easter Island in the South Sea want as many white men for husbands and Major Pooley is here today to get them.
See him at the Hotel Union.
"Men of the desirable kind," said Major Pooley in an advertisement inserted in a San Francisco newspaper, "are scarce in Easter Island. The women here are beautiful and I am here to get them. I represent one hundred of the best looking women on the island. They are wealthy. Their husbands will not have to work. They will live in ease and comfort for the rest of their days."

The next day more than 500 men appeared at Major Pooley's headquarters in the Alaska Pacific Steamship Company offices, to qualify as South Sea bridegrooms. It was estimated today that more than 5,000 white men have volunteered since the advertisement was first inserted.

M'GOVERN DEFENDS HIGH STATE TAXES; POINTS TO RESULTS

Governor in Milwaukee Address Calls Attention to Permanent Improvements and Public Service Rendered by State.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Jan. 16.—In an address before the Westminister Civic League here last night, Gov. Francis E. Mc-Govern defended the large state tax which he has proposed to raise for the high city taxes on the state and unofficially opened the progressive republican campaign for the fall election.
The governor made no announcement as to his candidacy for senator, but at the same time in his defense of this administration of the state affairs there might be seen the beginning of such a campaign.
One of the chief causes for high taxes, Mr. McGovern said, was the deficiency of the state's revenue. He said that the city had raised $2,000 for the purchase of power of a dollar.
Gov. McGovern said: "When an invitation came to me to address you upon this subject of high taxes and state expenses, I cheerfully accepted it.
I did this all the more gladly because I believe the people have a right to know the facts related to this important feature of public affairs.
They have a right to know whether the surd charges of extravagance they see daily in the public press are true or false, and if false, the state be informed why such misrepresentation is being made."

Says Politics Was Omitted.
In going up various criticisms made upon the subject, Gov. McGovern discussed the tax remission of $2,000,000 of last year, pointing out the fact that the money was left in the pockets of the people and that they had not the use of it during the year.
"One need not be a trained politician," he said, "to know that for election purposes a remission of a million of a million and a quarter dollars would have been just as advantageous as the remission of two million dollars, as was actually made.
The state treasury had nothing to do with the matter."

Referring to his discussion of the income tax question in the last campaign, the governor said: "I then said that what was perfectly true was that the tax of incomes had already materially reduced the rate of property taxation in this city, and shortly afterward the rate of property tax was reduced that the credit of this reduction would sooner or later be claimed by the city administration. What are the facts?
Under the law 70 per cent of the tax is paid by the state, 20 per cent by the county and 10 per cent to the state, while the state bears all the expense of administration. Last year the state paid $1,000,000 of the tax, and the county paid $200,000.
The state, therefore, retained to be raised here by general property taxation, the state paid $1,000,000 of assessed value. Had the city administration kept expenses down to the minimum, the rate of tax would have been reduced, therefore, have been reduced this year $1.23 below the rate for 1913."

Turns to State Expenses.
Turning to the discussion of state expenses, Gov. McGovern pointed out that the percentage of investment in permanent improvements is steadily increasing, while the percentage of the state's revenue is steadily declining. "Without going into the matter more in detail," he said, "at the present time let me say, in passing, that the construction of the state capitol

What will become of the poor little Federal leaguers of next season? At the rate that Fed officials are gobbling up big league material to bolster up their teams it would seem that there are a great many Federal leaguers of last season who will be seeking employment elsewhere in 1914. Quite a few of these, thus thrust out into the cold unfeeling world had jumped contracts and out-lawed themselves that they might join the Federal last year and they will be in a pretty pickle next summer when they are replaced by big league talent. They will find it hard to secure work in a baseball way and perhaps will have to do all their ball playing on the old corner lots. Or being obscure most of them they might change their names, get a little wake-up and go south. There where they are not known at all they might start life all over.

If the wind had only blown the other way the American league would have on its payrolls today four of the star National league pitchers. And such were the case it would be needless to point out that the American league would have the National league badly shaded in the matter of star pill tossers. Thirteen baseball history wagging, Christy Mathewson, well-known New York pitcher, signed with the Athletics and then jumped back to New York. Two years later he jumped to the Browns and was later sent back to New York. Rube Marquard is another National league star who would have been with the American league if he possibly could have. Marquard was very anxious to sign with Cleveland and did all he could to join the Naps, but at that time the Naps were not in a mood to try out green youngsters. Marquard had been starring with Canton in the Central league and the Boston Red Sox thought he looked pretty good and gave him a trial. Jeff Tesreau is another National star who came high being an American leaguer. He reported to Detroit in 1909, but Hughie Jennings was unwilling to pay Austin, Tex., the purchase price demanded and though willing to take Tesreau for a gift, Hughie didn't care to pay anything for him. Al-

Demaree makes the fourth National league star who might have starred in the American. George Stallings had purchased him for the Yanks, but let him go to Newark without a trial and after drifting to the Southern league, where he starred considerably, Demaree went to New York and some brilliantly, as we all have seen.

They're going to hand 'em a racquet while they're still in the cradle and teach them the game of tennis from earliest infancy. This is the proper way to raise a general. Side Tennis club of New York, and at a recent meeting they decided to arrange to let at least some 200 youngsters join the club and by teaching them carefully from an early age they will grow up to be McLoughlins and Johnstons. The idea is to raise a few youngsters in the East who will be able to compete with the youthful wizards that are continually being brought to light out on the Pacific coast. This is the first direct move to bring about anything of the sort and Easterners are anxious to see the new plan work out well and provide them with a galaxy of two of child wonders.

Dispatches from Tokyo warn us that the ball team of the University of Kelo at Tokyo is preparing to make a tour of the United States and show the Yanks how well the game is played in the Orient. Last year the Stanford university team of California made a trip to Japan, playing the Kelo boys a call and the return trip of the Japs is regarded, somewhat in the way of a social debt paid back. The Japs will not stop at Stanford, however, but will continue on through the states and stop at some of our most prominent college towns. Jap ball players have visited this country before and have shown us that they are not at all poor at our national diversion. They are remarkably fast at fielding an dare a flash on the bases, but as a rule they seem pretty weak at the stick. Somehow the little yellow men never seem able to wallop the pellet with any particular avidity.

JANESVILLE HIGHS READY TO OPPOSE FREEPORT CHAMPS

Local Quintet Meet Sucker Men At Illinois City Tonight—Curtis Picks Five to Represent School.

The Janesville high's basketball five decided yesterday afternoon at six o'clock, following their hardest grind of the season, that they were fully ready to tackle the Freeport champs at the Sucker City tonight. The game is scheduled to be called at seven-forty-five to allow the locals to return home on the last interurban car. Coach Curtis has picked what he believes to be the speediest five out of the squad material. That five will start the game tonight. They are Captain Hemming, center; Atwood and Dalton, left and right forwards; Rau and Stewart, left and right guards; Stickney and Barnes will compose the subs.

The sub material will be definitely picked later, although Stickney will be the first choice for the second string men. The game tonight will be bitterly fought throughout. About fifteen local rooters made the trip with the five, who left at three-fifteen over the Northwestern road this afternoon. Janesville, if defeated tonight, will not be discouraged for a defeat from Freeport will not harm her chance for further invasion in Wisconsin. On the other hand, if Janesville wins, they will be on a par with any of the Chicago high school fives, as well as in the state of Illinois.

VICE BOARD HOLDS 'TO STRENUOUS PACE

"Expect to Take Rest After This Week," Says Chairman Teasdale As He Reaches Sheboygan.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Sheboygan, Jan. 16.—"We have been going at a strenuous pace for two solid weeks and we shall take a little rest after this week," said Senator Howard Teasdale when the Wisconsin vice commission arrived here today.

Asked as the findings of the commission at Rhineland, Ashland, and Superior this week Mr. Teasdale said, "Rhineland is not bad. It is only a small city and appears to be well-governed. Ashland is also a much cleaner and better city than we had expected to find, but the conditions in Superior are terrible. The town is wide open and vice reigns supreme, due, I think, to the officials not making any effort to enforce the laws, but they are due for a cleanup there and steps are now being taken for a recall of the officials."

The sessions of the commission here are being held in the court house. The first thing this morning the commission sent officers out with long lists of names of girls working in shops and stores who are to be examined. City and county officials, ministers, Testimony was taken in municipal court this morning and afternoon in the case of the state against George Litts, who is charged with deserting his four-year-old son. Mrs. Litts was placed upon the stand this morning for the state, was cross examined by the defending attorney, J. L. Fisher, this afternoon. It is alleged that Litts refused to provide for the support of his son and he has been arrested on the same charge before and each time his case adjourned. District Attorney Dunwiddie is prosecuting the case.

BUSINESS OFFICE OPEN SATURDAY EVENINGS.

WEATHER FORECAST:

THE BOY SCOUTS.

Fair tonight and Saturday.

Just why Janesville was unable to maintain a Boy Scout organization, is not known, but it is to be regretted that the movement was allowed to die a natural death.

Reports from other cities indicate that the organization is growing rapidly, and accomplishing a great deal of good. There are plenty of boys in the city who need this kind of work and discipline and there should be no trouble in raising funds to carry it on, if the right man could be found to take charge of the organization. The judge of the juvenile court in Kansas City recently said:

"If every boy in the city could be interested in the Boy Scout movement, the juvenile court would soon be a stranger to the youth of the city, and we would rear a generation of men that would not need so much police protection."

"The boy must have a vent for his enthusiasm. Every day boys who have sought their fun with some gang come into the juvenile court for punishment. There are lots of them in the reformatories and prisons and the city is full of them."

"I have never had a Boy Scout in my court. There are twelve hundred of them in the city and they are too good to join a gang. They are our modern knights of chivalry. No 'sissy boy' makes a good Scout. It takes red blood, wholesome and bright boys."

Here's an editorial that recently appeared in the Virginia Times Dispatch, showing the influence for good, connected with the Boy Scout movement.

"If any boy be bad, he was. Six months ago they brought him into court and proved against him a charge which would have put a man in stripes. He was given a chance then on probation, but for some reason he did not make a good record; he reported tardily or not at all, would not attend school, and all but drove his overworked mother to distraction."

"So the future seemed gloomy enough when he stood yesterday in juvenile court, a tattered little lad of twelve, abashed, yet somewhat defiant, plucking mechanically at his hat and stealing an occasional glance at his mother. The officers of the court warned him, argued with him, tried to arouse him and appealed to his spirit. All in vain. He did not want to go to school, because his clothes were old, and he much preferred the factory and the night school, at least until he earned enough to buy a new suit. As his mother needed the pittance his small hands could earn, this seemed the only alternative; his probation was renewed, his record was started afresh, and he was about to leave the courtroom, a final warning in his ears."

"By chance some one proposed the remedy: 'Suppose we let you try to join the Boy Scouts and give you a uniform, if the Scoutmaster will let you enlist?'"

"In a moment the cloud lifted, and the sullen little face was flooded with the sunshine of joy. Did he want to join? He would do anything in the world to gain a place on the roster. Did he have to promise honesty, obedience, truthfulness and the rest? He would show those qualities and earn admittance. The world was made over, his little life had a purpose. For the first time his heart had set for an ideal. And as he left the courtroom, a few who saw him would have recognized him."

"Will our little fellow make a good Scout? Watch him!"

There is a good opportunity for some public spirited man, who has the time and disposition, to revive the organization in Janesville. The boys are here and something should be done for them.

THE OCEAN LINERS.

People who live inland, far removed from the seaboard cities, have but little conception of the great ocean greyhounds and what it costs to operate them. The Imperator, the largest ship afloat, was launched early last year by the Hamburg-American line. The builders guaranteed that she would maintain a speed of twenty-three knots an hour on 900 tons of coal a day, but it was found that the boilers consumed 1,150 tons every twenty-four hours.

The liner is now in dry dock to remedy this and some other defects. According to the following report, which recently appeared in "Power," an engineering magazine—

"We are informed that the builders of the Imperator, guaranteed a speed of 23 knots per hour on 900 tons of coal per day, but that she uses 1150 tons. In consequence of this the turbines are being made over in some respects for the purpose of reducing the steam consumption. In addition to this the vessel is said to be too heavy and to have been loaded with pig iron in the bottom. This increased the stability of the vessel, but it also increased her immersion. The effect of the pig iron and the vessel's own weight is that even when everything is taken from her that is practicable to remove, she draws 32 ft. 9 in. of water, and about 38 ft. when loaded. On account of this immersion the vessel cannot go behind the breakwater at Plymouth, and, therefore, in bad weather it is extremely difficult to land passengers.

The American office of the Hamburg-American Co. states that the home office of the company denies the reports about the inadequate boiler capacity, oil-burning furnaces and the remodeling of the turbines. The reason given for the change in route which avoids Plymouth, is that it facilitates the travel of passengers to land those for Paris at Cherbourg before landing those for the British Isles at Southampton. From Southampton to London is about a two-hour ride while from Cherbourg to Paris takes four hours.

"From the time of her maiden voyage until recently laid up, the Imperator has been in service seven months and has made several round trips, carrying a total of about 30,000 passengers. The hot-water system has proved inadequate and changes were badly needed in the crew's quarters. For these two reasons, chiefly, the owners say the vessel was docked for alterations."

McGOVERN'S DEFENSE.

Governor McGovern has thrown his "castor" into the political ring and started the campaign of the Wisconsin republicans for 1914, by a weak defense of the excessive last taxation ratio. In Milwaukee the last evening the governor made his first talk on this subject and according to telegraphic reports his talk was along the following lines:

"Characterizing the criticisms directed against increased taxation as 'lurid charges,' Gov. McGovern, in an address tonight before the Westminster Civic League, defended high taxes as an inevitable economic tendency which he declared is not confined to Wisconsin, but is manifest in all states and even the government."

"His principal arguments for increased taxation were that he called the diminished purchasing power of the dollar and the fact that the people nowadays demand a good many more things from the state government than ten years ago."

"The governor denounced cities who have attacked the numerous state commissions, giving it as his opinion that 'capitalistic interests are unalterably opposed to humane and progressive legislation,' and that they hope by harping on high taxes to fool the people into withdrawing the protection that now surrounds them."

"The governor admitted that Wisconsin 'as to gross delinquencies, has moved faster than her sister states,' but he charged that the expenditures of the state had been exaggerated."

If this is to be the doctrine of the republicans of Wisconsin during the coming campaign it is time for the business men, the farmers, who real taxpayers, to rise and assert their authority at the polls and select men for the legislature and for the state offices that will be pledged to an economical administration of state affairs and the repeal of the various tax-raising commissions that have been created during the past few years of mismanagement of public affairs."

The board of supervisors will be commended for encouraging good road building. Nothing will add more to the value of the farm than a highway that can be used the year round, and certainly nothing contributes more to the pleasure and comfort of rural life than good roads. "The money invested, if intelligently used, is money well spent, and the good work should go on until every road in the county becomes a macadam driveway."

Elbert Hubbard says that the easiest way to beat the eugenic law is for every prospective bridegroom to take out a life insurance policy for one to it to his wife for a wedding present. The suggestion is a good one and possibly the new state life insurance company might work the scheme to advantage as the promoters are looking for free advertising.

STATE PRESS OPINIONS.

State Fair Talk. In refusing the $30,000 guarantee for the state fair, the Merchants and Manufacturers association is paying back the state in the same coin the legislature has meted out to Milwaukee whenever this subject has been on tap.

The claims of certain members of the state press, and of a certain element in the legislature, that the fair is a great boon to Milwaukee and that Milwaukee does not adequately receive its share of the state's bounty, are reaching a pitch of consciousness where they demand an effective quietus.

This local association has supported its refusal to make the guarantee and more especially in the accompanying statement.

The people of Milwaukee like the state fair, and their liberal patronage year after year has made it a success. Sometimes it is beyond its deserts. In spite of the fact that the fair means next to nothing to the city commercially or financially, the business interests of the community, prompted by public spirit, have liberally supported it. Milwaukee Free Press.

Onward Commission.

The commission form of government idea seems to go marching steadily on, thriving on any opposition that may be arrayed against it. Janesville voted on it once and failed to get it, voted on it again and won. Now comes Antigo, a city that voted on the adoption two years ago and lost out, with an announcement that it will be tried once more. To this end Mayor Freilinger has signed a call for a special election on February 3.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

A Consoling Thought.

If your tax bills appear to be too high just console yourself with the patriotic thought that you are contributing to the support of a scientific research bureau, where high-browed college professors, for substantial consideration, are enlightening the nation by throwing upon it a reflection of the great and only and very expensive Wisconsin idea.—Port Washington Star.

LET THEIR BE LIGHT.

For a better lighted city throughout why not? Racine is no country town. Do not substitute side lights over street and cross streets. A well lighted street is in itself an addition to the police force, saying nothing of the convenience to citizens.—Racine Journal.

Anse Frisby, our banker, wanted to take a ride yesterday, and when he tried to borrow his automobile from the chauffeur, the latter said he had a date to take a gal out for a spin and Anse had to put off his trip.

A mellow drummer appeared at 'Tibbitts' oyster house one night last week, direct from 600 nights in New York and 300 nights in Chicago. Along toward the end of the performance the actors noticed that there was only one man left in the audience, but he kept clapping his hands so loud that they decided to go on with the show. After the show the manager went out and shook hands with this man and thanked him for applauding the show. "I wasn't applauding," he says, "I was the feller."

"I am the Janitor and the lights and lock 'was' uppin' my hands to keep warm." Ha, ha.

ORDERS A HEARING ON TAX COMPLAINT

State Tax Commission Will Investigate Question of Reapportioning Taxes in Rock County.

County Clerk H. W. Lee announced today that the state tax commission would hold a public hearing on Feb. 16 at the court house for the purpose of investigating alleged inequalities in the division of the state and county taxes in Rock county, particularly with reference to the case of the town of Beloit. A petition asking for an investigation and an adjustment was filed with the commission a week ago by Chairman H. B. Mosley and Town Clerk E. L. Rasey of the township.

Mr. Lee stated to the board that their attention would be called to the matter in a legal way later on, when he would send them notices announcing the date of the hearing. The tax district in the county is interested in the investigation, which may result in an entirely new distribution of the state and county levies among the various towns, cities and villages. The correction, if any is made, cannot become effective this year, and if the town of Beloit is found to be entitled to a rebate it will be allowed at the time of collecting taxes for 1914.

OVER FOUR HUNDRED IN EVENING SCHOOL

Total May Reach 450 Mark By Admission of Salesmanship Class to Be Started Soon.

The industrial evening school of this city have what is thought to be a record membership over other night schools in the state of Wisconsin. At least no other night schools have yet specified or made the fact known that they can reach the four hundred mark.

The local school began the year with something over 250 members. By the addition of many new classes and the popularity of the sewing and gasoline engine classes, the enrollment has reached the four hundred mark, with a possibility of the 450 mark being reached in the near future. The salesmanship class, when started, will increase the total considerably. Also, both the gasoline engine classes are open to those desiring entrance.

The two new classes in gasoline engines was started last night. Prof. Norris of Wisconsin University took charge of the class which met at the Lincoln school, while E. J. Manning conducted the class which have rooms at the high school. The former class is unlimited for want of members, while Mr. Manning's class can accommodate three or four more students.

LYRIC-MAJESTIC

An extraordinary five-cent program is presented at the Lyric Majestic Theaters again tonight. "The Mystery of the Dover Express," a very clever detective story by Edison, is perhaps the best number, although some may prefer the two-part Kluge-Kluge drama "When a Woman Wins," or "His Second Wife," a Vitaphone production with D. K. Lincoln and Anita Stewart. Mr. Lincoln has done wonderfully fine work in the Lyric Majestic specialties, lately, and Miss Stewart is developing into one of the most charming young women appearing in photoplays.

On Saturday and Sunday special dime programs will be offered, each containing two multiple-reel features.

PENSION TO MOTHERS GETS COLD SHOULDER

COUNTY BOARD VOTES DECISIVELY AGAINST CREATION OF $1,000 FUND.

MAKE APPROPRIATIONS

Bills Are Allowed, Salary List is Adopted for Year and Other Monetary Matters Considered.

Rock county supervisors evidently do not take kindly to the mothers' pension law, especially in the face of the high taxes which are occupying the forefront of attention at present, and by the decisive vote of 29 to 8 they voted down a resolution introduced by Supervisor E. W. Wilson of Beloit creating a $1,000 fund to be used according to the provisions of chapter 669, laws of 1913. The resolution provided that the state should contribute one-half of the sum set aside as provided by the statute. There was no discussion of the resolution and any remarks favoring it would have been of no effect, judging by the attitude adopted.

This was appropriation day at the board session. Practically every measure introduced involved the expenditure of county funds, which does not indicate that the board was at all prodigal. Merely the usual and ordinary bills were allowed as is necessary at the January meeting each year.

Aside from the mothers' pension fund, an appropriation which was turned down, and that was a resolution for $100 to provide for extra clerk hire in the office of the register of deeds during rush seasons, which the supervisors did not seem to think necessary.

The report of committee No. 10 on general claims, introduced by Supervisor Simon Smith, carried with it the allowance of a list of bills of considerable length, among which was the bill of County Highway Commissioner C. E. Moore for traveling expenses for the year amounting to $1,809.23.

The committee recommended the disallowance of a bill for $202.89 from Burr Tolles of Evansville, which Mr. Tolles incurred in a lawsuit arising out of the performance of his duties as a humane officer. Mr. Tolles killed a horse belonging to a man residing in his district, and was sued by the latter, who was awarded damages in a local court to the amount of the bill presented by Mr. Tolles. The county board reported that they could find no foundation in law for the allowance of the item.

On the motion of Supervisor Rehfeld the sum of $3,000 was set aside from the general fund for the relief of blind persons in the county. Of the motion of Supervisor Simon Smith $200 was ordered for the use of the building committee for incidentals.

The salary list of the county officers and the usual amounts for current expenses at the court house and county jail were allowed without opposition.

There was no change in the salary list over previous years as changes in salary list do not go into effect until next year.

George Seegmiller, superintendent of poor for the southern district, addressed the board on the matter of the new commitment law which has been in operation in Rock county for four or five months in 1913, was read at the afternoon meeting of the board. The total amount collected from prisoners under his supervision was $1,507.94, of which $36.48 was paid to the county treasurer and $1,561.48 was paid to dependents.

NEW TARIFF EFFECTS THE SHINGLE MARKET

First Effect of New Tariff Will Be Felt Here in a Few Days According to reports from the shingle market.

It is rumored that the price of shingles will be materially reduced in the next few days on account of the fact that the tariff on shingles has been reduced. This reduction has been down the price so that shingles will now be very cheap. It is understood that the local lumber dealers have jointly purchased a very large lot of clear Washington red cedar shingles and will place them on the local market soon at lower prices than good clear shingles have ever before sold here.

The Christian Church and Social Government

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D. D.
Dean of Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT: "Tender unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's; 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.'—Matthew 22:21 and 23.

These words of our Lord Jesus Christ suggest a sermon on the relation of the Christian church to civil government. But first, what is the Christian church? It is an elect body gathered out of all nations, in whom a supernatural work has been redeemed and sanctified through faith in the atonement of Christ, and as members of his spiritual body, are separated in an essential sense from the world. They are waiting for his re-appearing, and expect to be glorified and reign with him over the millennial earth.

There is a point of view therefore, in which such a people have nothing to do with civil government because such government is a part of the system of ungodliness represented by Satan whom the Scriptures call the god of this world. His dominion is to be destroyed when Christ comes to set up his kingdom in its place. True Christians, therefore, are not expecting the millennium to be brought about by moral or political reforms, but are waiting for his coming to introduce and make it a possibility.

What Caesar Represents. But while this is true, such Christians believe that they have obligations to the government under which they live, privileges to be enjoyed and a stewardship for which they must give account of God. Paul claimed protection because of his Roman citizenship, but no man has a moral right to ask protection from a government to which he is indifferent, and for which he will not use his influence to make it the best possible. "Caesar" represented the civil government of Christ's day, and the things to be rendered unto him were the taxes imposed by the Roman empire. But the "Caesar" of the United States to whom we are to pay tribute is not an individual or an empire, but in an important sense it is ourselves.

If this is a "government of the people, for the people and by the people," we are our own Caesar, and to ourselves we render tribute. According to Christ's command therefore, we are to support this government in accordance with the laws it has made. And yet more is implied, for we are not only "Caesar" to whom tribute must be paid, but "Caesar" who pays the tribute. For what do we demand this tribute therefore? How much of the taxes levied by us on our fellow-men goes into the pockets of those to whom it does not belong, because we are indulging our own convenience and letting things alone? How much of it supports our constabulary and law courts, our almshouses and jails whose existence is because of iniquitous legislation affording license to sin? Are we satisfied that in these things we can give account of our stewardship with joy? How much attention, as Christians, have we given to these things? How much do we know, and how much have we prayed about them?

Party or Purity, Which? This brings us to our second obligation in relation to civil government, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Of course, this means that we shall try to save our neighbor and bring him with us on the way to heaven. But it means also that we can not be indifferent to the earthly difficulties of the way. In other words, we must not permit Satan to flout his temptations in the way without an effort to destroy them. There are dram shops, brothels and gambling dens open for the amusement of our young men and women. If our newspapers are to be believed, law is defied by municipal and state officers to the demoralization of both public and private standards of right and wrong. Who are responsible for these things? Will not God hold those professing Christians to account who, for the sake of party fealty, on the one hand, or lack of public duty on the other, to have failed to overthrow them.

The New Testament says scarcely anything about the relation of the Christian church to civil government because in the time of Christ and his apostles there was no civil government in the sense in which we conceive of it. But the duty of the individual Christian is included nevertheless in the second commandment of the law, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," for love worketh no evil to his neighbor, either by omission or commission.

It is a common plea of the faint-hearted that success depends mainly on luck. I am no believer in luck, and the man who is content to wait for a stroke of good fortune, will probably wait till he has a stroke of paralysis.—Sir F. Treves.

DEMAND FOR LABOR SLACK AT PRESENT

Curtailing of Factory Employment Has Important Effect on Labor Market—Many Women Out of Work.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—There are just about twice as many people out of work in Wisconsin now as last year at this time. According to the reports of the Wisconsin bureau of employment, there were 115 applicants for every 100 jobs in December, 1912, while December, 1913, showed 233 applicants for every 100 jobs. The situation is a good deal worse in the northern part of the state, where Milwaukee shows 256 applicants for every 100 jobs, while Superior reports only 130. Unemployment is greater among women, factory girls and many women who work by the day and cannot obtain employment. An increasing number are therefore going into domestic service. More positions were secured through the state employment office in December, 1913, than in December, 1912—1,633 as compared with 1,587—but the number of applications increased at a much greater rate.

Factory Work Curtailed. The building trades were as active at the close of the year 1913 as in 1912. In the lumber camps the number of men employed was from 25 to 30 per cent less than last year. Factory work throughout the state has been curtailed. The metal and machinery trades registered about one-fourth demand they did at the end of 1912. Factories have been laid off from 10 to 50 per cent of the force. Many more reduced the number of hours work and some work only five days a week. Railroad shops are working from 25 to 50 per cent of capacity. The woodworking trades are almost in the same condition. It is common for factories in this line to shut down for a week or two at this time of the year, and many of them are doubling the time of suspension this year. Reports received show some factories working from 20 to 30 per cent less than capacity and fewer hours per day.

Hotels and restaurants employed a good deal less help at the end of 1913 than they did in 1912, and the same is true of department stores. Shoe factories, cigar factories and knitting mills reported curtailed operations in December.

Look for a Recovery. The outlook for 1914 seems to be bright, but factory managers think it will be several months before business gets in full swing again. Some say that they do not expect any improvement until the spring, others until the summer. At steel production showed a further decline in December and although the trade papers say that indications of a turn are at hand, it will take several months for this to be felt in the metal trade shops. The situation is similar in the woodworking trades. Lumbermen report that they will make no further cuts in prices because inquiries for various kinds of wood are increasing and business conditions are improving. While this together with cold weather may increase the number of men employed in the woods, it will be some time before mills and factories are in full force.

Meanwhile the only work that seems available for the unemployed in the state is ice harvesting, which will begin shortly, and short jobs at cleaning and repairing.

STATISTICS SHOW WOMAN LIVE NO LONGER THAN MEN.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, Jan. 16.—That white women live to and die more advanced ages than white men, is proved by figures published today by the Department of Commerce. Until the age of eighty years more deaths of male members of the race are recorded. This is accounted for by the fact that there are more men than women.

Conceding that numbers of both sexes are about even at the age of seventy, a great number of the surviving men die the next decade after which the mortality rate for women leads. There were 780 women over 95 years old who died during the year 1910, and only 584 men of the same age died; 246 people over 100 years old died during the year, and of this number 149 were women. These figures would soon prove that the elder women die faster than the men, but actually, it is not women live to a greater old age than men, hence the greater mortality figures in the advanced ages.

USE STATE LABORATORY FOR WASSERMAN TESTS WHERE DISPUTE ARISES.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—The state laboratory cannot be sued by physicians of the state indiscriminately to make Wasserman tests under the new eugenic marriage law according to Dr. M. P. Ravenel, director, in a letter to the Gazette today. "It has been decided by the authorities in charge of the laboratory that the work of the laboratory in connection with this new law shall be confined strictly to such cases as the law provides for," says Dr. Ravenel. "In other words, only cases which a dispute has arisen can be referred to the laboratory for this test. "Even if the law permitted us to make these general examinations we have not the equipment to do so. On the basis of 13,000 examinations this would mean from 50 to 60 examinations a day. With our present force and equipment we simply could not handle this."

GERMAN DOCTORS TRY TO GRAFT ARM ON GIRL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Berlin, Jan. 16.—Surgeons throughout Germany today are watching with intense interest the case of Marie Kuback, who recently underwent a remarkable operation in a hospital at Prague. The patient, a dressmaker, was suffering from a disease of the upper arm which necessitated amputation. Just before the operation another girl, who had attempted suicide, died in the hospital and the doctors decided to try a grafting experiment. Removing the bone from the upper arm of Miss Kuback they inserted it in its place a section from the arm of the dead girl. The operation was successful beyond the doctors' latest sanguine hopes and latest reports from the hospital say the patient is steadily improving.

Edgerton, Jan. 16.—John Dawe, for the past fifty-eight years a resident of Rock county, yesterday in his eighty-third birthday celebration, was the guest of honor at a party given at his home in the east part of the city. The event was participated in only by members of the family. Of strong and robust constitution, even at this advanced age, Mr. Dawe continues to hold his own and is still active in all pursuits of life.

Mr. Dawe was born in Devonshire, England, January 15, 1834. Coming to this country in 1856, he located in Fulton township in the month of September of the same year. He then and there engaged in farming until 1867, when he retired and began a career as a teacher. He was then known as the village of Edgerton. Here he opened a provision commission business which he conducted for some time and in 1869 he engaged in the general mercantile business. In 1871 he retired from the same and engaged in farming in Albion township in which he continued until 1876. Next he purchased a farm in Porter township which he conducted successfully for many years. There he also was chairman of the town board and member of the county board of supervisors for several years.

In 1868, in Fulton township, he was married to Miss Ann S. Downing, native of Pennsylvania, who died on April 4, 1872. On Oct. 29, 1873, he was again married to Miss Hannah Spike. A abandoning agricultural pursuits, he entered the real estate business in the fall of 1874, and has since been a resident of Edgerton where he has since resided. Politically he is a democrat and cast his first presidential vote for Stephen A. Douglas in 1860. In August, 1885, he received the appointment as master under the Cleveland administration in which he continued for nine years. First Quarter. Lesson III. Luke 10: 25-37. January 18, 1914.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN.

The question, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" is a mere dialectical game. Jesus takes the question on his own ground when he asks, "What does it say?" In the lawyer's response one sees how superior the religion of the Old Testament was to the religion of the New Testament.

Jesus had ceased to be a Jew. He was a Samaritan. Religion of Pharisees was cold dialectics. The lawyer, conscious of his inability to keep the law as its full breadth, would find an escape in the Pharisaical refinement upon it.

In the question, "Who is my neighbor?" Jesus has driven the matter home to his heart, but he will deviously find it off with his dialectical racket.

Jesus finds the pledge of eternal life in the subjective state; this religious dodger begs to know the objective status of those toward whom he is to exercise himself. If they are Jews and friends, he will love them. More than that, the paraphrases, turgidity and whatnots of Pharisaism do not require him.

At this point the wideness and purity of the love which God instills in the penitent and trustful soul is flashed out in one of the most incomparable parables that ever dropped from the lips of Him who speaks as never man did. The site of the story was notable, not to say notorious; the personage, a wounded traveler, a priest, a Levite, a Samaritan. The priest and Levite show us "how not to do it." They palliate and excuse themselves. The Samaritan may not be a Jew; if so, the law, as they interpret it, makes no demand upon them. Even if a Jew, he might die while they were binding up his wounds; and if he did, they would be ceremonially polluted and disqualified from temple service. Ah! how they had failed to learn that; if God could not have both mercy and the ceremony of sacrifice, he would choose mercy always. The Samaritan does not stop to parley; he just neighbors the unfortunate man, and that is the end of it. He does it heartily and thoroughly. That naked and ensanguined form makes its own plea to him, and makes it not in vain to the others. He opens both heart and pocketbook. The commercial traveler is transformed into the trained nurse as he sits the night-watcher through by the sufferer's side. Only when he reached the boundary of another duty did he leave him. Even then he protected his aid into the future by the deposit of his mule, and the pledge he left. And he, the Samaritan, the Samaritan, Jesus casts the matter back into the heart of his interlocutor, where it belonged, saying, "Who neighbored the unfortunate man?" To this, of course, there could be but one answer. "He who, rid of all racial prejudice and all selfishness, loved his fellow-men, and that, too, in none of the sentimentalism which otherized in sighs and tears and flourish of lavender-scented cambric, but materialized in wine, oil, and peace, a saddle and a couch. Any Christianity which falls short in this test is unworthy of the name of Him who said, 'Do thou likewise.'"

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

To this day a public speaker in the East needs to be ready at repartee. He is target for questions which, if he can not answer or tell, he instantly loses prestige with his auditors.

missionary in the streets of Bombay was getting on famously with his hearers until a pundit passing called out, contemptuously, "The man who invented illuminating gas did more for the world than your Jesus!" The missionary retorted, "When that man comes to die he'll send for a gas-fitter, I suppose."

The lawyer saw an opportunity to air his erudition—to tempt this influential Rabbi into the mazes of cunning dialectics and subtle casuistry, in which he hoped to snare him, and thus elevate himself in public esteem. Do to inherit: The question is based on the false notion that eternal life is of works. There is no consciousness of human inability and guilt. But the lawyer finds the way of legality as hard and forbidding as Bunyan's pilgrim. He can't right away. He can love his neighbor. If he is allowed to define the term neighbor, Jesus does not himself define the term neighbor; but by an example, irresistible in its charm, he shows that subjective state of heart which makes a man neighbor to all his fellows. Divine religion has its mark in that it is epitomized with extraordinary facility. The scribes heap up great "casuistical" burdens for men's backs. Their prohibitions and positive precepts were fairly bewildering and interminable. But Jesus sweeps them all aside, puts instead of them one word—Love.

Ambitious Endeavorers.

(Led by the President.)

The soldier is a passing figure in current civilization. In St. Paul's day, however, he was the unit of power, the model of efficiency. As such, without even the implication of commanding his profession, the apostle exhorts Timothy and through him all young people of every generation, to be good soldiers; to develop the qualities of endurance, obedience, courage, and efficiency. He warns him against self-pleasing and becoming entangled in affairs that will not contribute to his success.

NECKTIES

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Bismarck."

A NECKTIE is man's substitute for ribbons, lace, frills, flowers, feathers, reverses, berthas, jabots, dog collars and other ornaments, too numerous to mention.

Very few men attempt to beautify themselves by hanging on decorations. Most men regard this task as hopeless and are content to let their tailors sculpture them into attractive shapes and designs. It is only in his necktie as a rule, that man attempts to dazzle the world with color and design.

Man's devotion to dress can usually be measured by his neckties. If he buys $15 worth of suit and wears it until the health department objects, he usually has the clothier throw in a necktie which he wears until it comes apart. Many a man has come back home to Boggs' Corner or Crooked Lane changed in features that his old friends would not have recognized him except for his necktie.

On the other hand, if a man has a suit for every day in the week and a dozen pairs of beautiful cream colored pants for summer wear, he usually picks out neckties as lovingly as a connoisseur picking out art and many a man who picks out twenty candidates for once from among two hundred in ten seconds will spend an hour trying to decide whether or not a lemon colored tie with gold and sapphire arabesques will bring out his ginger colored hair too prominently.

A few men prefer landscape art to neckties and wear beads instead with great economy and success. And a few old fashioned men use a $100 diamond collar button as a substitute, saving much money in the long run, because a diamond never fades or parts in the back under a heavy strain. But the remainder of mankind spend a few minutes each morning running a necktie through a collar and hauling on the slack end of the knot like a sailor tugging at the mainmast. There are few sadder features of modern slavery than the sight of a brave patriot trying to choke himself and to swear at the same time while conforming to fashion's stern decree.

To the student of character, the black string necktie denotes either piety or politics; the trip little bow, neatness and efficiency; the chromatic four-in-hand with calliope, toots, recklessness at cards; the two acre folding affair which hides the shirt, an economical disposition; the flowing cataract of crepe du chise, an artistic disposition for above the thought of work; and the greasy tie with the front worn off back to the thing—an aversion to bathtubs and other messy ideas.

Fashionable neckties are very elaborate in design this year and the noise of traffic on Broadway in New York is entirely drowned out by the haberdashers' windows.

BURBANK IMPROVES FLAX FOR ARTISTS

Seed Expert Perfects New Food Called Quino, a Combination of Wheat, Barley and Oats.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
San Francisco, Jan. 16.—When planting times comes next Spring there is one crop for which the seeds will be taken from a burglar and fireproof vault in San Francisco.
These seeds represent more than a quarter of a century of work by Luther Burbank. If lost or destroyed they could not be duplicated, at any rate for years, and it was to guard against this that the Luther Burbank company recently stored them in the strong-rooms of the Union Trust company and the Seaboard National Bank.

One seed is a new kind of flax, from the oil of which artists will make their paint. Another is a cereal known as quino to take the place of wheat, barley and oats.
Painters have long complained that oil with which their paints are mixed is not neutral because of the variable-ness of the flaxseed from which it is made, and consequently that it often gives unexpected and sometimes unsatisfactory effects. Burbank began gathering every kind of flax from all parts of the world years ago, selected a certain seed as his ideal and began developing the plant to grow only this type. Year after year the seed was planted, and when it was ripe only those were kept that were of the type desired. Finally a point has been reached where the variety seems to have become fixed. Burbank declares that the oil it produces is absolutely neutral.

The quino plant is designed to take the place of cereal foods made from different grains. The seed resembles a small, brown, round, like a wild mustard. It is claimed to have all the food values of other grains, and is much cheaper. Moreover, in making cracked wheat, rolled oats or barley much of the grain is wasted.
The entire seed of the quino plant is utilized. Originally it came from South America, but its development and climatization to California soil and study and experiment. Of the quino seeds of the type Burbank has produced there is not a speck in the world.

"We have put the seeds in safe deposit vaults," said President James H.
Edwards of the Luther Burbank company, "because if they are destroyed they would never be reproduced.
There are no more like them, and I doubt if Burbank would live long enough to develop them again. It will be several years before we will be able to raise a sufficient quantity of either seed to be placed upon the market."

PROMOTE T. STOCKS TO NEW TERMINAL

Important Changes Made in Operating Department of Northwestern Railroad.

Radical changes have been made in the operating and mechanical department of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad which were officially certified in Janesville last week. Thomas J. Stocks, roundhouse foreman at South Janesville, has been transferred to the Fond du Lac terminal roundhouse. Walter Wade, who was assistant roundhouse foreman in one of the Chicago stations, and has been in the service of the Northwestern road for twenty-five years, replaces Mr. Stocks.
Mr. Stocks has had charge of the Janesville roundhouse for over a year and during his engagement here has proven an efficient workman for his road. His promotion to the Fond du Lac station is regretted by railroad men in Janesville because of his popularity. The Fond du Lac roundhouse is one of the most important stations in the state, as it is an important division point and an enormous amount of freight business is handled at the yards.

W. W. Hoffman, formerly of Janesville, has been appointed master mechanic of the Wisconsin Division, from the position of roundhouse foreman at Milwaukee. W. H. Whitford, whom Mr. Stocks succeeds at Fond du Lac, received the position as foreman at the Milwaukee roundhouse.

E. B. Hall, master mechanic of the Wisconsin Division, was appointed assistant or general superintendent of W. Syde, superintendent of motive power and machinery, with headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Schultz is well superintendent of the East Iowa Division, was named as assistant to the general manager, with headquarters in Chicago. E. A. Schultz, master mechanic of the Northern Wisconsin Division, was appointed master mechanic of Wisconsin Division, with headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Schultz is well known to Janesville railroad men and he has received many congratulations from local trainmen on the Wisconsin line.

Other important changes were made on division superintendents on Iowa lines and the Northwestern officials have been busy with the chopping block on many of the officials in the Chicago offices whom the division superintendents will replace.

NIAGARA FALLS POWER CONTROVERSY HEARING BEFORE HOUSE JUDGES.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Jan. 16.—Hearings on the Niagara Falls power controversy are on here today before the House committee on foreign affairs.

The House is expected to pass the Cline bill which gives the Secretary of War broad powers over the hydroelectric companies on the American side of the Falls. The measure would prevent the diversion of more than 15,000 cubic feet of water per second for power purposes, and would make the companies subject to state regulations on service and tolls.

A barometric depression occupies the north central states, with its center over Lake Michigan. It is attended by light snow around Lake Superior and in the northeastern states, and by warm weather in the central and southern states. It is somewhat colder in the Canadian northwest but temperatures above normal still prevail there as elsewhere.

Vice-president Geo. S. Parker of the Commercial club this morning re-

Sterling, Illinois, against the construction of a bridge across the Rock river by the Burlington railroad unless it was of the draw-bridge pattern. This is along the line of making the Rock river—Janesville to Rock Island—a navigable stream.
The matter was at once taken up with persons interested in the project and telegrams sent to the government engineer's office at Sterling.

Broadway Jones

From the Play of George M. Cohan

By EDWARD MARSHALL

With Photographs from Scenes in the Play

Copyright, 1914, by G. W. Dillingham Company

These were the headlines of the item Wallace had perused with such dismay upon the first page of the newspaper: There were columns of it.

"MRS. JAMES GERARD'S ENGAGEMENT."

"The Three Times Widow to Share Her Millions With Broadway's Own Jackson Jones."

"This Announcement, Which Surprised New York, Was Made Last Night at a Dinner-Party Given by the Young Spendthrift in Honor of the Wealthy Widow."

Wallace dropped the paper and looked at it as it lay upon the floor with discontent apparent in his countenance. "That's the biggest laugh New York has had in years," he groaned. "I'd like to see it."

Upon a nearby table the telephone buzzed busily. He went to it.

"Hello," said he. "Yes. . . No, this is Mr. Wallace speaking. . . No, not Mr. Jones. I am a friend of his. . . No, he can't come to the phone. He's dressing. . . I can't make an appointment for you. What's the name? . . . Yes, I have it: Peter Pembroke. . . You must see him today? . . . Very well, I'll tell him. . . Say you'll call? . . . All right, I'll tell him. Good-by."

He returned from the phone as Rankin reappeared. "Wake him, did you?" "Yes, sir. He'll be dressed in about ten minutes." He bustled about the room, gathering up the newspapers. "I told him I had just read of his engagement and I congratulated him."

"What did he say?" "Nothing, sir; just asked for the papers and a whisky sour. He says he sure and wait."

"Oh, I'll wait, all right!"

"There was something stronger than mere acquiescence in the young man's voice. There was determination in it, the determination of a man who has a plan in mind. Thus might a fond, but angry father speak, who held a rod in pickle for the erring son for whom he waited.

Fiercely he paced the room until his steps, half way to the outer hall, were arrested by the buzzing of the doorbell. Rankin, who had started with the whisky sour and newspapers for his master's door, turned back and put them on a table.

"Another early caller?" he complained. The situation had begun to get on his nerves.

"It's a newspaper reporter tell him Mr. Jones is out of town."

"Yes, sir."

Wallace felt his nerves rasp as he heard the voice which greeted Rankin in the hall. It was not that of a journalist, but that of the fair and ancient widow to whom Jackson was alleged to be affianced. For a moment he considered flight, but he was mired of sterner stuff and held himself in check. The lady swept into the room.

It was evident that she was just a bit nonplussed at seeing him, but she recovered quickly; she had had much experience with the emergencies of life.

"Good morning, Mr. Wallace," she said sweetly.

Her age, he noted, showed more plainly in the daytime, despite the arts which she invoked to hide it. He had not seen her previously, save by artificial light.

He was shocked. She made him think of the unpleasant mother of an unpleasant boyhood schoolmate. He had hated all of them. Exactly as this old woman now was smiling that old woman of his early youth had smiled when she with diabolical ingenuity had been devising comprehensive plans for spoiling a day's fishing.

His greeting of Mrs. Gerard was very formal, but she did not seem to mind.

"Where is Mr. Jones?" she asked Rankin.

"He's dressing, ma'am."

"Well, tell him I am here and waiting to take him for a spin through the park. Say to him that it's a glorious morning."

There was a unctious in her tones, a hint of triumph and proprietorship which maddened Wallace. Could it be possible that his good friend was to be linked in wedlock with this—er—this—

He was instinctively a courteous man and his thoughts refused to form a word to suit his wild emotions.

She turned to him. "Won't you join us, Mr. Wallace?" Her voice was honeyed, though he saw that she was sure of his antagonism and reciprocated it.

"No," he snapped. It was as an afterthought he added: "Thanks!"

"You went away early last night," she ventured, still with the honeyed smile.

"Yes."

"You didn't wait for the announcement."

"No."

"Were you surprised when you heard it?"

"Staggered."

The smile deepened. She was most offensive in her victory. "I thought you would be. What do you think of it all?"

He made no reply, merely casting at her a malevolent, sidelong glance.

"I say what do you think of it all?"

"What do you think of it, yourself?"

"I am as happy as a little birdy in a tree-top," she replied, assuming airs reserved for maidens of sixteen.

Against his will, indeed, to his astonishment, he burst into a roar of laughter.

She looked at him with natural indignation.

"You'll pardon me, Mrs. Gerard," he said apologetically, "but I was thinking of something funny."

"Something that just happened?" she said suspiciously.

"No," he replied earnestly, "something that happened years ago."

"For a moment I thought you were laughing at me," she admitted.

"Oh, Mrs. Gerard—how could you?" She was pacified. Taking herself with perfect seriousness she did not fail to credit others with the same intention. "I know I'm horribly touchy in some respects." She would gaily, almost babyishly, "Mother always calls me a silly child."

His astonishment was genuine. "Your mother! Is your mother still living?"

"Why, yes; of course. And what a mother!" she cried enthusiastically. "What a wonderful mother! Sixty-five!"

As she had herself at least reached that age, he felt himself pardonable for interpreting her meaning as he did. "Sixty-five children? Really?"

He was losing patience with the woman. "Do you mean to tell me that you're—"

"Sh!" she cautioned playfully. "I don't tell my age to everyone!"

"I can readily understand that."

"How old are you, Mr. Wallace?" she asked sweetly, evidently pleased at the establishment of confidential relations with this, Broadway's most intimate friend.

"I'll be twelve in October," he replied with a calm smile.

"Twelve!" She paused and then burst into her small cackle of artificial laughter. "Oh, I see; you want me to add about twenty to that!"

"Yes," he exclaimed ungallantly, disgustedly, "and add about thirty more to your own."

"What!" She was instantly indignant, not unnaturally.

"Oh, come, now, Mrs. Gerard!" he urged. "You don't expect me to believe that you—"

She was thoroughly indignant. "How dare you, sir! Do you know what you're saying?"

"I know what I'd like to say," he confessed, looking steadfastly at her. "About what?"

"About your engagement to young Mr. Jones. Why, you're not taking the chap seriously, are you?"

Her anger grew. "What do you mean?"

"Just what I say," he answered firmly. "That it's all wrong. It's impossible. The idea of a woman of your age imagining for a moment that this boy is fool enough to think of such a thing! Do you stop to think what people will say? Don't you realize that it can't be? That it's simply preposterous? Why—"

"Are you trying to insult me, sir?" "No," he answered earnestly. "I'm trying to save you from being humiliated and laughed at. Deny the story at once. Say it was all a joke. Say anything, but for heaven's sake don't let it get any further!"

She gazed at him in speechless wrath while he nervously paced the room.

"Surely," he said whirling, "you don't think he seriously considers marrying you?"

"And why not?" Her icy tone was full of outraged dignity.

"Because it would be a ridiculous match. Give it serious thought. You're a sensible woman, figure it out for yourself. Why, you're more than twice his age!"

"Why, he's only twenty-five—not that, yet."

She gazed at him in speechless rage for twenty seconds, then said, explosively: "You—brute!"

"I'm your friend," he urged. "I'm trying to help you. I'm trying to save you from being made the laughing stock of the town."

"Do you mean to insinuate that Jackson doesn't love me?"

"Jackson doesn't love anyone except a good time. Why, he doesn't take anything seriously, especially women. To my knowledge he's been engaged to thirty since he's been here in New York."

"I—don't—believe you!"

He shrugged his shoulders. "Very well; go ahead; it's no affair of mine."

She agreed with this. "You'll do well to remember that. Attend to your own business, Mr. Wallace."

"Excuse me," he said apologetically, "I'm sorry I spoke."

As he thus apologized, disgusted, worried, even frightened by the middle in which his friend had so involved himself, entirely ignorant of the sorry cause which had led Broadway to the fatal step, that young man entered from the hall, having effaced as many traces as he could of the wild night, and rightly clothed himself for morning callers. As he advanced, he hummed a stanza from some cabaret favorite which ran, monotonously: "I love you; oh, I love you!"

At sight of Mrs. Gerard he brightened and sprang toward her eagerly. He was not the one to go back on a bargain, or to make a wry face over necessary medicine.

"Beatrice, my Beatrice!" he cried. Wallace eyed them with disgust as they flew into each other's arms.

Having released his "Beatrice, my Beatrice," he turned to Wallace with a calm which Wallace could not but admire. The youngster certainly was game! "Good morning, Bob."

Wallace scorned him.

Broadway did not even wince, but turned back to his Beatrice. "And how is my little banquet queen this morning?"

"I came here happy as a lark," she said complacently, "but now I'm terribly upset."

"Why, what has happened to my little round of pleasure?" He smiled serenely, worshipfully into her scarcely hidden wrinkles.

"This man has been saying terrible things to me."

Jackson whirled reproachfully upon his friend. "Why, Bob! What have you been saying to my little Beatrice?"

"Oh, don't!" implored the utterly disgusted Wallace.

"Tell me," Jackson begged in comforting tones of the excited widow; "what has he been saying to you?"

"Calling it a ridiculous match, saying that I shouldn't take you seriously, intimating that you didn't really love me, and—"

She was very close to tears, but fought them back for the sake of a complexion which she feared might not be waterproof.

Broadway went with an accusing mien to Wallace. "You said these things!"
